FIREMEN'S BANQUET WEDNESDAY NIGHT

Columbia Company Will Celebrate Its Golden Jubilee

EXPECT 190 GUESTS

First Engine Was Old Steamer Purchased in Philadelphia—William Kilgore First President of Company

The Columbia Engine and Motor Company No. 4, will next Wednesday night celebrate its fiftieth anniversary with a banquet at the company's house on St. Asaph street, south of King street. Invitations have been extended to 190 guests, including the members of the company.

Among those expected to attend are the following: Gov. Westmoreland Davis, Senators Carter Glass and Claude A. Swanson, Chief Watson and Supt. of Machinery Robinson, of the Washington Fire Department, Mayor J. M. Duncan, members of the city council, city officials representatives of the business organizations of the city and others.

The original Columbia steam engine was purchased in Philadelphia and shipped here on the steamer George H. Strout, arriving here February 13, 1871. It was immediately taken to the old Hydraulian Engine House and placed in the hands of Engineer Joseph H. Young by whom it was given a trail at the corner of Cameron and Royal streets. The engine together with a hose carriage and 800 feet of hose cost $3,000. At the trial water was thrown over the market house steeple. The engine was known as Columbia No. 16, and had been the property of a company which had been disbanded by the ordinance abolishing the Philadelphia volunteer fire department.

Indicating the spirit which the ordinance was regarded by "Old timers" in the city of "Brotherly Love" it is said that while the machine was being drawn through the streets of that city to the boat a dead fox was suspended with its head to the smoke stack and on a piece of canvass was the inscription, "Good bye Dan, Ho, ov Alexandria." This gibe was levelled at Mayor Fox for signing the objectional decree.

With the arival of this engine it became necessary to organize a new fire company in the city and in response to an invitation from Col. M. D. Ball, a large number of applicants for enrollment held a meeting at his office, William Kilgore, presiding.

On motion of R. J. Daingerfield it was unanimously voted that the organization be known as the Columbia Steam Fire Engine Company and a committee was appointed to notify the fire wardens to that effect and request that the apparatus be turned over to the company's care. At that time the wardens were James R. Smoot, E. S. Leadbeater, W. H. Lambert and James Coleman and the request was acceded to them the following evening.

The first business meeting of the new company was held March 9, 1871, when the following officers were elected and appointments made: William Kilgore, president; D. A. Windsor, first vice president; M. D. Ball, second vice president; M. H. Janney, treasurer; A. S. Marshall, secretary; Edmund Burke, corresponding secretary; Dr. James C. Hill, surgeon; John B. Smoot, Geo. Bryan, W. H. Vandegrift, executive committee; W. H. Underwood, commander of engine; Joseph Hardy, William Cole, William Zimmerman, commanders of hose; R. J. Daingerfield, J. E. Pepoint, M. McClain, George Uhler, William H. Clarage, A. T. Ramsay, pipemen; L. K. Hardy, C. E. Glover, G. S. French, R. T. Lucas, J. H. Mansfield, A. W. Chilton, George Hinken, W. H. Beck, R. W. Falls, Henry Herbner and R. B. Lee Fleming, members.

It was voted that the company uniform consists of black trousers, Baltimore Firemen's hat and belt, with company and personal name, gray shirt with trimmings and company number on front, black cravat. When on parade a white rose was to be worn on the left breasts. The company was initiated into service at the market house fire. The company in after years participated in many contests and won many prizes in this estate, Maryland and other places.

The committee that went to Philadelphia and purchased the engine was composed of E. S. Leadbeater, James R. Smoot and James Coleman.

He was born at Brentsville and was in the 76th year of his age. In 1863 he enlisted in the Southern army as a cadet from V. M. I., and served the South to the end of the war in Gen. Harding Is Now President Of U. S.

TO SHUN ENTANGLEMENTS

Cold Shoulder to Canceling Ten Billions of Debts—To Tighten up Federal Purse Strings—Favors Protective Tariff—Day Dawns Clear and Cold—Conducted at Capitol—Greets President Wilson—Mounts Inaugural Platform.

Washington, D. C., March 4.—Warren G. Harding was inaugurated as President of the United States today in record time.

The inaugural ceremonies were the shortest in history, and but few inaugurals have been more simple.

Unwilling to believe advance notices of the simplicity of the proceedings, huge throngs began to crowd the streets this morning, only to be disappointed.

The carnival spirit of other years was entirely lacking—even the streets were undecorated except for the flags which merchants displayed from their ousiness places along Pennsylvanin avenue and the decorations that some of the old-time residents flung from their windows.

Solemnly mindful of the great responsibilities that will be his for the next four years, and expressing a prayer for Divine guidance in the solution of the momentous problems facing him, President Harding took the oath of office shortly after noon.

Before a great standing crowd of thousands, which completely filled the broad plaza and eddied for blocks around the Capitol itself, the new President accepted the supreme gift of the Republic in a short inaugural address—an address in which he did not attempt to outline in other than general terms the program of international and domestic policies to be followed by his Administration.

"For my part," he said simply, "I accept with single mindedness of purpose, and humility of spirit, and implore the favor and guidance of God in His Heaven. With those I am unafraid and confidently face the future."

The new President pledged an Administration that will stand foursquare on the principles of the Republic as laid down by its founders; he promised his Administration will work unceasingly for the furtherance of America's greatness in world affairs, and for the expansion of her commerce and influence—all without deviating from Washington's policy of "no entangling alliances" with foreign powers.

The supreme task facing the new Administration, President Harding said, is the resumption "of our onward normal way—reconstruction, readjustment, restoration." To the hastening of these he pledged himself. But he warned at the same time that there is no instant step from disorder to order, that the recovery from war must be natural and unimpeded by any "wild experiments."

The League of Nations, paramount issue of the campaign, was not mentioned specifically by the new resident, but concerning the foreign policy of his Administration he had this to say:

"We seek no part in directing the destinies of the old world. We do not mean to be entangled. America can be a party to no permanent military alliance. It can enter into no political commitments, nor assume any economic obligations which will subject our decisions to any other than our own authority. A world super-government is contrary to everything we cherish and can have no sanction by our Republic."

President Harding indicated plainly that his Administration will turn a cold shoulder to those who seek to have America cancel the ten billions of debts owed her by European nations. Without mentioning the allied indebtedness specifically, he said:

"Discouraging indebtedness confronts us, like all the war-torn nations, and these obligations must be provided for. No civilization can stand repudiation."

One of the most immediate tasks confronting the nation, President Harding declared, was to "put our own public household in order," reduce expenditures, lop off waste, and effect a general tightening up on the Federal purse strings.

"I had rather," he said, "summon our industrial controversies to the conference table in advance than to a settlement table after conflict and suffering."

The need for a protective tariff to keep out a flood of cheap foreign goods which would choke American industries is greater today than ever before, the new President asserted. America, he said, must adjust her tariffs to the new order.

Inaugural Day—the day on which Ohio sent the seventh of her sons into the White House—dawned clear and cold. The temperature was not far from freezing, and there was a stiff breeze whipping the flags that decorated Pennsylvania avenue and the Government buildings.

It was typical "Harding weather" in its lack of rain or other disagreeable features. Not once during the long campaign at Marion did rain fall on a front porch delegation, and friends of the new President, crowding the Capital today in large numbers, were gleeful at the continuance of "Harding luck." They took it as a happy augury.

Shortly before 10 o'clock a half-dozen motors drew up in front of the United States Capitol, threading their way through the throngs which had gathered there, and the members of the Congressional committee appointed to conduct the inauguration clambered in and whirled downtown.

Conducted to Capitol

Headed by Senator Knox, of Pennsylvania, the Congressional committee went to the hotel room where Mr. Harding had spent the morning at work. The committee with due formality announced that they had arrived to conduct the President-elect to the Capitol to be inaugurated, and the former Senator, with absolute lack of formality, addressed them familiarly, folded a small manscript into his pocket and joined the committee.

A great crowd assembled before the hotel cheered wildly as the new Executive made his way to a powerful motor and was whirled away to his future home—the White House.

As the cars drew up before the White House gates, the police on duty there saluted their new "boss," and he waved his hand at them.

At the White House doors the Congressional committee was met by the chief usher and shown into the East Room, where President Wilson was seated, After an exchange of greetings the outgoing President rose and while attendants wrapped him carefully in a cape he grasped his cane and rather weakly and with some faltering made his way to the car where his successor awaited him.

President Wilson and President-elect Harding, unattended by pomp or the blaring of bands or a great military escort, then drove together down Pennsylvania Avenue, through a lane which police and Secret Service men had swept clear. A troop of cavalry from Fort Myer had been provided for an escort, but the President elect asked for speed and the cavalry escort was of little real value as an escort. Both the retiring and the incoming Presidents acknowledged the wild applause of the throngs.

Arrive at Capitol

Arriving at the Capitol the party made their way to the Senate floor. President Wilson went to the President's room, just off the Senate chamber, where he seated himself at a desk and began the signature of bills passed in the closing minutes of Congress, fading out of the picture.

A few minutes before the hands of the Senate clock turned to twelve the President-elect and the Vice President-elect went into the Senate chamber. There Mr. Harding was greeted by his old friends and some of his old political enemies, and he was apparently at complete ease, or he felt at home there—it was the scene of his first big public service.

Vice President Marshall called for order; twitching his gray moustache he made a characteristically brief speech, thanking the Senators for the courtesies they had shown him, and then called Calvin Coolidge to be sworn in as Vice President. Newly elected members of the Senate were sworn in, and the Senate was adjourned sine die.

With the Congressional committee in the lead, President-elect Harding was escorted through the winding marble halls of the Capitol to the front entrance.

As the new President made his appearance on the steps of the Capitol building the crowds gathered in Capitol Park went wild with cheering

Mounts Inaugural Platform

With his flowing black robes swishing in the breeze the elderly Chief Justice stood erect, and facing the bronzed, stalwart new President, administered the oath of office.

The hand of Warren G. Harding, the hand that has set type and been grimed with toil, was respectfully placed on the Bible, the oath of office given, and the United States had a new Chief Executive.

Halting for a few minutes—perhaps for a silent prayer—President Harding stepped to the front of the platform, placing his manuscript on a little table which has been used by every President since Abraham Lincoln was inaugurated.

Woman Takes Convict

Orange, Va., March 4.—Undaunted by her sex and without any assistance except her husband's unloaded shotgun, Mrs. B. H. Frye, who lives near here, yesterday morning stopped the flight of an escaped convict and held him covered with her gun until the posse pursuing arived and took him off her hands.

The negro, Archie Scott, was one of the five who made their escape from the convict camp here Tuesday afternoon after one of their number brutally slew Guard W. E. Snow who tried to stop the dash for liberty.

After the escape, the negroes formed two parties, one of two and the other of three. The party of three laid their course toward the mountains and when the posse with blood hounds reached the parting of the ways, the posse was split, one faction taking the chase in one direction and the other continuing after the two going toward Culpeper.

After a chase of a day and a night, the pursuit yesterday morning began to grow warm when a farmer reported that he had sighted the three making toward the mountains. The jaded posse redoubled its efforts and pushed on. While scouting through the woods bordering the Robinson River, Tom Hart, a member of the posse, came upon two of the three his party was seeking. They were Ernest Brown and Archie Scott. Brown was in possession of the rifle taken from Guard Snow and with which he was killed. Hart states that Brown raised the rifle to shoot him, but Hart was too quick for him and fired first blinding him by discharging one barrel of a double barrelled shotgun in his face. After that capture was easy, Scott, however, dived off the cliff where he was hiding, into the river. Swimming across he emerged on the other side and took to the woods.

As he was nearing the home of B. H. Frye, a prominent farmer, Mrs. Frye saw him coming. She ran into the house, grabbed up her husband's shotgun, which she did not know was empty. She went back into the road and hid herself behind a tree.

As the negro came up, she confronted him with a leveled rifle and commanded him to halt, which he romptly did. She held him standing there until the posse came up and secured him. The posse in the meanitme had made good the capture of Brown.

Late yesterday afternoon it is reported that the other negro, deserted by his companions, gave himself up to the officials and is now under guard with the others at the camp.

The other two went in the direction of Culpeper, and are still at large. The dogs trailed them until they reached the Strother home near Culpeper, the scene of a famous Virginia murder of several years ago. The trail ended in the barn at this home. The dogs then refused to carry the pursuit any further.

At an investigation of the affair here yesterday morning by the Commonwealth's attorney, it is said that that official has satisfied himself that William Barnes, one of the negroes captured in the getaway, was not guilty of the murder of Guard Snow.

Falls From Train

D. F. Taylor, Southern Railway Baggagemaster, Has Narrow Escape From Death

D. F. Taylor, about thirty years old, a baggagemaster on the Southern Railway, had a narrow escape from being killed yesterday when he fell from the baggage car of his train while going at the rate of about forty-five miles an hour. The accident happened near Springfield, about sixteen miles south of Alexandria.

The train was known as No. 14, northbound from Harrisonburg to Wash., D. C. An alarm was sounded and the train brought to a stop and Mr. Taylor picked up and brought to this city and conveyed in an ambulance to the Alexandria Hospital. He was treated by Drs. Delaney and Smith and is suffering from concussion of the brain. In addition he also received numerous bruises and contusions.

He is a member of the lodge of Elks.

Just how the accident happened is not known, although it is supposed that Mr. Taylor endeavored to close the door of the car and fell out as he did so.

DECISION TO LEAGUE EXPECTED MONDAY

Germans Will Meet Allies' Reparations Demands, Is Belief

EXPECT NEW OFFER

Penalties to be Inflicted—Means Control of Coal—Custom Houses on Rhine—Germans Sit Stolidly.

London, March 4.—Lloyd George presented to the Germans yesterday the Allied ultimatum, giving them until Monday noon to meet the Allied reparations terms or submit to penalties which will paralyze their trade in the Rhineland and put Germany's economic life under control of the Entente powers.

There is every prospect that the German delegates here will bring forward a new offer. The British Premier made them a clear opening for such overtures when, in his long address to the delegates at the St. James's Palace, he said that the Supreme Council would have listened had the Germans raised sincere objections to some of the Allied demands. If, for instance, he explained, they had wished modification of the number of years in which to pay, or substitution of some new proposal for the 12 per cent export tax, the Allies would have considered their suggestions. Instead, he recalled, they had made an absurdly small offer that was not worthy of attention.

Dr. Walter Simons, German Foreign Minister, replying briefly to Mr. Lloyd George, promised to examine the ultimatum handed him by the British Premier, but said he desired to point out his belief that the Allies had misunderstood the terms Germany offered. The conference adjourned immediately. The Germans, returning to their hotel, transmitted the Allied note to Berlin, where the next step will be taken by the German Government.

The penalties which the Allies will inflict unless agreement is reached Monday, as outlined by Lloyd George, are:

The imposition in various countries, through permission of their Parliaments, of a tax on Germanmade goods.

The payment of all duties collected by the German customs service into the reparation fund.

The Allied occupation of the Rhine cities of Duisburg, Ruhrort and Duesseldorf would involve Allied control of all German coal production. Premier Briand told the Tribune correspondent last night that the Allied powers plan to place a heavy duty on every ton of Germman coal passing through the Allied frontier cordon.

"Thus we would impose not only simple military sanctions," said the French Premier, "but military sanctions with an economic value. Through Duisburg and Ruhrort passes all the traffic from the Ruhr Valley to North Germany and the neutral countries of Holland and Scandinavia. Through Duesseldorf passes all traffic from the Ruhr to South Germany and the Central Europe, except for perhaps a tenth part which goes by rail overland. that part, also will be neglected.

The tax on German manufactured goods would be collected in different countries by the withholding of a share of the retail price and the transmission of this share to the reparations fund. Economic experts attached to the Allied delegations explain that the money colected in each country would be put in the national treasury and then credited to that country's share of German reparations money.

The moneys collected from the customs service would be on the basis of the present German tariff schedules. A line of customs houses would be established temporarily along the Rhine and at the boundaries of the bridge-head areas. A tariff would be collected on goods either entering or leaving the country.

The Germans arrived early for this morning's session. Dr. Simons looked particularly pale, weary and despondi-

TO-DAY'S THOUGHT. Our birth is but a sleep and a forgetting: the soul that rises with us, our life's star, hath had elsewhere its setting, and cometh from afar. Not in entire forgetfulness, and not in utter nakedness, but trailing clouds of glory, do we come from God who is our home: Heaven lies about us in our infancy.

Made in Richmond.

There is in Richmond a "Made-in-Richmond Exposition" that co-operates with the Richmond Chamber of Commerce. They have just issued a classified list of products manufactured in that city. It takes 24 pages to enumerate the articles. It starts with "assorted cans" and goes through the alphabet to "vinegar."

It is an instructive pamphlet and should be a stimulant to all other southern cities. To one who only knows the Richmond of twenty years ago, the progress is simply astounding. She has the largest cigar factory in the world. The city makes 400 million cigars annually. She has the largest woodwork in the world. The largest baking-powder factory; the largest bottled flavoring extract factory; the largest mica mills; the largest fertilizer factory company; and the largest cotton oil company. She excels in many other things besides. The South may well be proud of the former capital of the Confederacy. We venture to add one more item in which we believe Richmond will be found to excel. We are persuaded that Richmond today contains a greater proportion of native American stock than any city of twice her size in the country. We are firm in the belief that she is 100 per cent in her Americanism.

What Richmond is today, Alexandria can achieve. We have all her advantages—and then some!—Our deep water, our proximity to inexhaustible coal fields, and our geographical situation certainly ought to bring us an unprecedented prosperity.

Richmond's Chamber of Commerce has been a leading factor in this enormous growth. We have unlimited belief in our own Chamber of Commerce, and look to it as our foremost agency in the building up of Alexandria. At the same time we owe it an undoubted fealty and cooperation! The Richmond Chamber of Commerce has had the unlimited confidence of all her people. This has spelled her unexampled success.

Jan Smuts and President Wilson.

Yesterday's Washington Herald published in yesterday's edition a lengthy article on "Woodrow Wilson's Place in History," by "General the Right Honorable Jan Christian Smuts, Premier of the Union of South Africa." The Gazette notes, with much satisfaction, that the article is identical in thought with its editorial of January 24th last. The thought is not only the same, but there is a striking similarity in the language and metapor. The Saturday Evening Post, dated March 5th, but distributed March 3d, likewise in its leading editorial, agrees in the main with the views of General Smuts and the Gazette.

The statement of this paper at the time of its editorial that history would confirm the views therein expressed, seems to be already in due process of verification. We headed our editorial "an appreciation and a prophecy." The aptitude of the latter word seems to be emphasized by the two writers mentioned.

HARDING SWORN ON WASHINGTON BIBLE

When President Warren G. Harding took the oath of office as President of the United States at the inaugural ceremonies yesterday he laid his hand upon the same Bible which was used for the first inauguration of George Washington in 1789.

President Harding expressed the wish that this sere and yellow Bible carefully preserved for over 132 years, be used in administering the oath of office instead of the Bible of the Supreme Court of the United States, which is customarily used at inaugurations.

The old Bible is the most sacred and treasured possession of St. John's Lodge, Free and Accepted Masons, No. 1, of New York city. In recent years it has been kept perpetually under lock and key in a safety deposit vault to protect it from the ravages of time. It was taken from its resting place a few days ago and, guarded by a delegation of three stalwart Masons, selected by the lodge, was brought to this city These guardains of the priceless treasure have never allowed the Bible from their sight during the inauguration trip, and they were stationed on the inauguration platform yesterday, handing the book to Chief Justice White, who administered the oath to the President. After the oath was administered the Bible was immediately returned to their keeping.

The Bible became the instrument of George Washingtons induction into office in a curious way. The first President was sworn into office at the then Federal Building in New York city, which stood on the site of the present subtreasury. There was not a single copy of the Bible in the building, and Chancellor Livingston, who was to administer the oath, was master of St. John's Lodge of Masons. He sent a messenger to the Lodge rooms nearby for the lodge Bible, and Washington placed his hand upon it as the oath was delivered, and at its close pressed his lips to the open page before him.

The Bible will be returned to the safety deposit vault after the inauguration today.

White House is Spick and Span

The White House, over which Mrs. Warren G. Harding today becomes mistress, is as splendid as any palace She will find it spick and span, as the result of the housecleaning force. Everything is as fine and orderly as a great system could make it.

Congress apropmiates each year $35,000 for the care and furnishing of the Executive Mansion.

While Presidents' wives order some changes to keep abreast of the times, and to renew any scratched or damaged furniture, much of the charm of the place comes from its furniture and silver dating back to the earliest Presidents.

Some of the show furnishings of the White House are: A "gold" piano, valued at $22,000; two wonderful blue Sevres vases, valued $5,000 each; oil portraits of priceless value, including one of Martha Washington; chandeliers containing 6,300 pieces of crystal, carpets and draperies of great value and rarity; several sets of China wear containing each 1,500 pieces.

Marble and gold leaf combine with the richest materials in furnishings to make the White House a fitting home for the Nation's Chief Executive.

Warren G. Harding is the first United States Senator ever elected President of the United States.

Benjamin Harrison was a Senator-elect and before he took his seat he was named for the Presidency. Senator Harding's term in the Senate would have expired today had he not resigned the beginning of the year.

Important Points In President's Address

We seek no part in directing the destinies of the old world. We do not mean to be entangled.

America can be a party to no permanent military alliance. It can enter into no political commitments, nor assume any economic obligations which will subject our decisions to any other than our own authority.

A world super government is contrary to everything we cherish and can have no sanction by our Republic.

America is ready to encourage, eager to initiate, anxious to participate in any seemly program likely to lessen the probability of war.

Mankind needs a world wide benediction of understanding.

In the new order of finance and trade we mean to promote enlarged activities and seek expanded confidence.

Our supreme task is the resumption of our onward normal way.

Discouraging indebtedness confronts us like all the wartorn nations, and these obligations must be provided for. No civilization can stand repudiation.

We can reduce abnormal expenditures and we will.

There is no instant step from disorder to order. We must face a condition of grim reality, charge off our losses and start afresh.

Any wild experiment will only add to the confusion. Our best assurance lies in efficient administration of our proven system.

We must adjust our tariffs to the new order.

Service is the supreme commitment of life.

SPORTS

Last night at Armory Hall the Dreadnaughts defeated an aggregation of stars representing the Fitzgerald Council K. of C. by a score which of 25. The "Ds" romped at will over their opponents and in the first quarter they started right off showing 'em what real class was.

Saturday night at Armory Hall the "Ds" face the Bliss Electrical School and as the latter has shown well in the game this season it is expected of 25. The "Ds" romped at will that a good game is in store for the fans.

CARD OF THANKS

ent. It was apparent that all the delegates on both sides were laboring under a nervous strain, with the possible exception of Baron Hayashi, of Japan, who seemed to be as unemotional as ever. A great crowd had gathered around the Palace, but everything connected with the session was somber and as solemn as a funeral.

As soon as the conference opened, Lloyd George rose and began reading from a manuscript his speech that was unusually long for him, lasting about two hours.

Dr. Simons and his companions sat stolidly throughout Lloyd George's speech, showing no sign of emotion. They did not even whisper among themselves. When the British Premier had finished, Dr. Simons arose to reply, and although he utered only two sentences, both were ambiguous.

When the German Foreign Minister said he thought the Allies had misunderstood the attitude of the German Government, it was difficult to judge whether Dr. Simons referred to the counter proposal made to the Allies or to speeches delivered by himself and other members of the Government.

When he said he considered that there was no occasion for making use of the sanctions mentioned by Premier Lloyd George, it was difficult to know whether he thought these penalties were not justified or that future proposals which the Germans would make would meet the demands of the Allies.

When the conference was over the Germans hurried away to their hotels in their motor cars, but Briand and Lloyd George stopped for a few minutes earnest conversation.

In Allied circles last night the belief prevails that the Germans will come back Monday with a program of concessions reasonable enough to force Allied consideration. The talk of a new war that circulates in Paris and rumors of tremendous troop concentrations are discounted here, for it is pointed out that only 80,000 soldiers will be used in enforcing the proposed penalties if the Germans fail to meet the Allied demands. Most of these troops will be French, with only a handful of British and Belgians.

FUNDS FOR IRELAND

Campaign for Starving Women And Children March 17-28

Washington, D. C., March 4.—Preparations for the intensive campaign for funds to be conducted March 17 to 28 for the benefit of the starving women and children of Ireland are well under way by the local executive committee of the American Committee for Relief in Ireland and promoters of the drive already are optimistic that the $100,000 quota will be greatly oversubscribed.

Stories of the appalling conditions in Ireland where thousands of people have been made homeless and where unemployment and starvation has followed in the wake of reprisals perpetrated by the Black and Tans, particularly the official report of C. J. France, brother of U. S. Senator France, of Maryland, who is heading a unit investigating conditions in Ireland, have touched the hearts of the American people.

The simple, heroic testimony given by Miss Mary MacSwiney, sister of the late Lord Mayor Terence MacSwiney, of Cork, given before the investigating commission here some time ago, has impressed upon generous hearted Washingtonians the necessity for an immediate response to mercy's call.

"The men can get on," Miss MacSwiney said, "The women can stand the suffering, but it is for the children I plead. We must have help this winter."

At a meeting here addressed by U. S. Senator David I. Walsh, of Massachusetts, Rt. Rev. Thomas J. Shahan, rector of Catholic University, and others, tentative plans for the drive were laid and reports of the various committee chairmen were read. Anthony J. Barrett is director of the drive here and Daniel W. O'Donoghue is chairman of the executive committee.

Unusual Combination of Types in "Dinty" New Neilan Picture

An unusual combination of types is offered in "Dinty," Marshall Neilan's newest production for First National release, which will be the attraction at the Idle Hour Theatre Saturday. As three of the chief characters in the story Director Neilan has used Wesley Barry, the freckle-faced kid in "Go And Get It" and "Don't Ever Marry;" Aaron Mitchell, a pickaninny, and Walter Chung, an almond-eyed youngster of Oriental extraction.

Other widely contrasted types are offered by Colleen Moore, as an Irish girl; Julia Faye, as a modern vamp; Anna May Wong, a beautiful Chinese maiden of eighteen summers in pretty Oriental garb; Noah Beery, as a Malay half-breed; Pat O'Malley, Marjorie Daw and J. Barney Sherry, in straight American parts; Tom Wilson, as an Irish cop; Jimmy Wong, an 86 year old native of the land of the Chee Chee bird, and Kate Price, as a typical Bridget from Erin

Wants Knights to Organize Welfare Work in Italy

New York, March 4.—Pope Benedict has asked the Knights of Columbus to organize community welfare work throughout Italy, that organization announced yesterday. Athletic clubs for use of Italian youths would be a part of the program.

This work, if undertaken, would be supported independently of the organization's war fund, William J. McGinley, supreme secretary, said.

Dublin Curfew Hours Extended By British Army

Dublin, March 4.—General headquarters announced yesterday that Dublin's curfew hours, at present from 10 p. m., until 5 a. m., have been extended one hour and will be from 9 p. m., until 5 a. m. During these hours citizens will not be permitted outside their homes. This will close many places of amusement. It is regarded as a punitive measure for recent attacks on crown forces.

Recently airplane observers reported a gathering of men in ambush near Dunmore, County Galway. Black and Tans were sent to the scene. They found no trace of them but have been active in the district since. In Glenamaddy, a nearby village, a machine gun was trained on a congregation leaving church and posters put up saying: "If one policeman is shot here the town will be destroyed. God save the King."

Dunmore also was tetrrorized by bombs thrown into the homes of Michael Finnegan and Councilor Kennedy and into the town hall.

General headquarters has ordered the closing down of three branch railways in Queen's County, including an important connection, Port Arlington to Athlone, following attacks on military detachments. An aged man named Roche and a woman named Mrs. Styles were wounded last night by bullets fired from military lorries that had been attacked. The machines didn't stop but teh military kept on firing until out of range.

President-Elect's Day In Capital in Detail

Mr. and Mrs. Harding drove at once to the New Wilard hotel, where they spent the night. During the afternoon they received informally calls of numerous personal friends, including Harry M. Daugherty.

Mr. Harding received the corps of Washington newspaper correspondents at 5 o'clock, bespeaking their cooperation in making the new administration a success.

The President-elect and Mrs. Harding went to the White House just before the dinner hour to pay "the traditional call of respect" upon the retiring President and Mrs. Wilson.

Mr. Harding definitely announced the appointment of James J. Davis, of Pennsylvania, and George B. Christian, Jr. ,of Ohio, respectively, as Secretary of Labor and private secretary to the President.

Wilson Out in Public Today by Great Effort

The President today made his first real public appearance since he was stricken ill many months ago.

After the inaugural ceremonies he went to his new home and will hold a reception there this afternoon for Democratic members of Congress and loyal Democratic supporters.

Boy Bank Thief's Defense To Be Landis' Clemency

Chicago, March 4.—Despite the youth's vehement denial that the leniency shown by Judge Landis toward a youthful bank embezzler of Ottawa Ill., had any influence whatever in inducing him to steal $772,000 in bonds, the attorneys for William Dalton will make that their chief of defense.

Two courts called for Dalton today, but he did not appear in either. In the Municipal Court there is a charge of larceny against him. This had not been disposed of before the grand jury indicted him for embezzlement and larceny as bailee. Dalton's lawyers said they would seek to have the larceny charge dismissed at once and would ask a continuance on the grand jury indictment. It was indicated today that the case would not come to trial for at least six weeks. Dalton is still in jail, although $15,000 bonds have been posted for his release.

GROCER KILLED BY NEGRO GUNMAN

Washington, D. C. March 4.—Max Lieberman, storekeeper at 219 M street southwest, was fatally shot at 11:30 o'clock last night by one or two negro holdup men, who are said by the police to have robbed the shop of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Weinstein, at 147 G street southeast, a few hours earlier. Lieberman died at 2:30 o'clock this morning.

The pair entered Lieberman's place and asked for a pack of cigarettes. Lieberman bent to a case to comply and found himself covered with a revolver when he glanced up. As he moved, the weapon was discharged, the bullet ploughing through his chest. He was taken to Casualty Hospital after the negroes has escaped.

The men used the same subterfuge at the Weinstein store, securing $6 from the cash register without having to fire the weapon.

Oldest Living U. of Va., Alumnus Age 96, Excoriates Prohibition

Elkridge, Md., March 4.—A pleasant optimism for the future and an excoriation of prohibition were the outstanding features of an interview here today with Dr. Cary Breckenridge Gamble, age ninety-six, oldest living alumnus of the University of Virginia.

A son of Miss Letitia Breckenridge, of Fincastle, and Col. Robert Gamble of Gamble's Hill, Richmond, Va., he studied at the University of Virginia in the class of '45 with William C. Rives, Mark Alexander, Patrick Henry Aylett and other distinguished men of the old South.

He recalls standing guard at the door of Professor Cabell's home on the university grounds the morning after the election of President Pierce. Upon being asked a question by Professor Cabell, he replied that he was so grieved at the defeat of Henry Clay upon the annexation of Texas that he could not answer because his country was ruined.

Dr. Gamble saw service during the four years of the Civil War. He was post surgeon with the rank of Major under General Braxton Bragg, commanding the Southwestern Army. While caring for enemy wounded, he was captured at Shiloh. He was introduced to General Grant while a Yankee prisoner.

The aged physician is in good health and takes an active interest in current events. He expects to return to the University of Virginia this June when his Alma Mater's Centennial Anniversary is celebrated. If Dr. Gamble is able to make the long trip from Maryland, he will be awarded the prize offered by the General Alumni Association for the return to college of the oldest living alumnus.

"These are much better days in many respects than the 'good old days' of half a century ago, with the exception of prohibition, a plethora of fools, too rapid living and several unpleasant "isms," said Dr. Gamble.

"Universities of today with a wider variety of courses and with greater facilities for contact with the advances of science and culture in all the great centers of learning, and with the benefit of the past experiences of their predecessors, obviously impart to students a more thorough education than did the universities of seventy five years ago. I am quite certain that young men have more advantages now than they did in 1825.

"I would advise all young men who can afford the time and expense to go to college whether they intend to enter business or a profession. Education is the sine qua non of intelligent citizenship. Self educators are rare, while the many incentives to complete the college course once undertaken, are too obvious to mention.

Washington Made Briefest Inaugural Address

The shortest inaugural address ever delivered by a President of the United States was the one delivered by Geo. Washington at his second inauguration, March 4, 1793. It was as follows:

Fellow Citizens:

I am again called upon, by the voice of my country, to execute the functions of its Chief Magistrate. When the occasion proper for it shall arrive. I shall endeavor to express the high sense I entertain for this distinguished honor, and of the confidence which has been reposed in me by the People of United America.

Previous to the execution of any official act of the President, the Constitution requires an oath of office. This oath I am now about to take, and in your presence; that, if it should be found, during my administration of the Government. I have, in any instance, violated willingly or knowingly, the injunction thereof, I may (besides incurring constitutional punishment), be subject to the upbraiding of all who are now witness of the present solemn ceremony.

GUARD AGAINST AN EPIDEMIC

Enrich and Strengthen Your Blood Now With That Splendid Tonic Gude's Pepto-Mangan

Rich Red Blood Fights Germs

If You Are Pale, Overtired, Lacking in Energy and Enthusiasm, Your Blood is Probably Thin and Needs a Tonic

The first and perhaps the only thing you can do to avoid the dangers that would come if there were a epidemic, is to take special care of your health. Keep your blood in good condition. The blood very often gets in bad shape, almost without your knowing it. How many times you feel tired and exhausted. You have an all gone feeling for weeks. You don't care about eating or going anywhere. Your work becomes an effort and you wake up in the morning more tired than when you went to bed.

When you feel like that, look to your blood. You can be pretty sure it is in a weakened condition. You have been straining either mentally or physically and your blood has become clogged with poison.

Gude's Pepto-Mangan is put up in both liquid and tablet form and is sold by druggists everywhere. The liquid and tablets have exactly the same medicinal value. Buy whichever you prefer and be sure it is genuine "Gude's Pepto-Mangan." The name "Gude's" is on the package.

FEELS HAPPY LIKE BOY, SAYS BRISTOW

Petersburg Man Tells of Wonderful Change Since Taking Tanlac

"Tanlac certainly did the work for me," said R. H. Bristow, 208 Northwest St., Petersburg, Va., who has charge of a delivery route in Petersburg for the Corby Baking Company, Richmond.

"About six months ago I began to feel out of sorts generally. I suffered so much after every meal I almost stopped eating. Why, often a cup of coffee and a bite of biscuit was all I would take. If I dared to eat more pretty soon I would have a tightness in the chest and my throat would fill with gas, cuting off my breauth. It was all I could do to stick on my job and as soon as I was through the day's work I would go home and throw myself on the bed feeling more dead than alive. I got little sleep at night and used to get up feeling worse than when I went to bed.

"Tanlac suited my case exactly and I am like a new man now. I eat three big meals a day and am never bothered with a sign of indigestion. I sleep like a top and jump out of bed in the morning feeling fine, eat a big breakfast and go to work as happy as a boy. I'm hoping I'll never get like that again, but if I do I know the right medicine to take. From now on Tanlac is my stand-by."
